ID released in homicide

North Preston.

Police say they have no suspects in death of Narico Downey

ALEX
BOUTILIER

A North Preston man is HRM's latest homicide victim after a shooting on Downey Road.

Police confirmed Monday night that the victim of Sunday's shooting was 23-year-old Narico Downey. Autopsy results showed he died of a single gunshot wound.

Halifax District RCMP responded to a 911 call just before 9 p.m. Sunday. While en route to Downey Road, police were told the victim was travelling to hospital in another vehicle.

That vehicle was stopped on Lake Major Road, and EHS transported Downey to the QEII Health Sciences Centre. He later died of his injuries.

This is the 40th shooting and the ninth homicide in the municipality this year, according to Halifax Regional Police.

RCMP spokeswoman Const. Tammy Lobb said the investigation is in its early stages, and could not provide more information Monday night.

"At this point it's too early to speculate, but police would not leave out any possibility for any motive," said Lobb. "That would all be part and parcel of the overall investigation the members are doing."

Police did not have a suspect Monday, and Lobb could not say what type of firearm was used in the killing.

According to Public Prosecution Services, Downey was scheduled to appear in Halifax provincial court this September for trial on charges of assault, theft under $5,000, mischief and two counts of failure to comply with conditions.

In November 2011, he pleaded guilty to accessory after the fact in a 2009 abduction and robbery at a Cole Harbour bowling alley. He received an 18-month conditional sentence for his role in that crime.

David Sharpe's time at the Olympics has come to an end.

The 21-year-old Halifax swimmer finished seventh in his heat and 31st overall in the 200-metre butterfly Monday morning at the 2012 Olympics in London.

Sharpe finished with a time of 1:59.87 and failed to qualify for the semifinals. The time was a full second off his personal best.

Nova Scotia's first male swimmer at the Olympics started strong, posting splits of 26.60 and 29.68 at the half-way point of the race, good for second place. But his last two splits clocked in at 31.28 and 32.31.

In Olympic laser radial sailing Monday, Danielle Dube of the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron and St. Margaret Sailing Club is ranked 23rd after the first day of races.

The Glen Haven native placed 21 of 41 racers in the first race and 22nd in the second race. She is 3:23 behind the leader.

Actor's appearance. Hollywood movie star a featured attraction in morning pro-am for TELUS World Skins Game at Glen Arbour

philip.croucher@metronews.ca

Heather Spidell came to the Glen Arbour Golf Course in Hammonds Plains on Monday hoping to wind up in the vicinity of a movie star.

Well, she did that and then some.

The Halifax woman was standing on the ninth green during the morning pro-am for the TELUS World Skins Game when the approach shot from Hollywood actor and director Kevin Costner bounced in front of her and struck her in the upper leg.

Costner headed her way a short time later, looking for his ball, and to make sure she wasn't hurt.

"I'd said I'm OK, but I can use a hug," she gushed afterwards in telling her encounter with Costner.

"And then he came across and offered to take photos with my sister-in-law, Georgina, and I."

"I told him he could hit me anytime," she added. "He was very nice. It was nice."

The hole was a tough one for Costner, who almost hit it out of bounds twice.

"It wasn't so embarrassing, it was sad," he said of the ninth hole. "I hit this gal, and she wants a date. It's like that's not golf, c'mon."

Costner was an attraction for many who attended Monday's pro-am, which also included Canadian singer Tom Cochrane and the five PGA tour players competing in the Skins game itself — Paul Casey, Stephen Ames, Carl Pettersson, Lucas Glover and Jhonattan Vegas.

Costner is the lead-singer of the band Kevin Costner and Modern West and also performed an acoustic show, along with Cochrane, during a private function hosted by TELUS on Monday night.

"You look up and it's really pastoral and then you just feel like you're mad all day long."

Health Minister Dave Wilson and HRM mayoralty candidate Mike Savage were amongst the four other players in his group.

Costner was clearly the best player, while Wilson and Savage struggled.

"Everybody was trying to make putts they know they can't make, and shots they know they can't make. But I guess that's the game, right?" Costner asked.

An act of altruism

"I play for charity, that's it. I don't play for fun or anything else. If I'm going to play for fun, I'm going to play barefoot."

Safety experts. Distracted walking is a growing issue

A young man talking on a cellphone meanders along the edge of a lonely train platform at night. Suddenly he stumbles, loses his balance and pitches over the side, landing head first on the tracks.

Fortunately there were no trains approaching the Philadelphia-area station at that moment, because it took the man several minutes to recover enough to climb out of danger.

But the incident, captured last year by a security camera, underscores the risks of what government officials and safety experts say is a growing problem: distracted walking.

On city streets, in suburban parking lots and in shopping centres, there is usually someone strolling while talking on a phone, texting with his head down, listening to music, or playing a game. The problem isn't as widely discussed as distracted driving, but the danger is real.

Reports of injuries to distracted walkers treated at hospital emergency rooms have more than quadrupled in the past seven years and are almost certainly under-reported.

Environment. Canadian and U.S. officials talk renewable energy

New England governors and their eastern Canadian counterparts, who are eager to export a growing overabundance of hydroelectric and wind power, promised Monday to work together to increase the use of clean energy throughout the region.

During their 36th annual meeting, governors, eastern Canadian provincial leaders and their representatives talked about the need to share energy resources across state, provincial and international boundaries. They also talked about transportation and alternative transportation issues, such as electric vehicles.

Monday's meeting at a hotel overlooking Lake Champlain in Vermont lacked the drama of a series of protests on Sunday during which police in riot gear fired nonlethal projectiles at demonstrators blocking buses carrying conference participants.

Vermont Gov. Peter Shumlin said after the conference ended that he was disappointed police had to use force to make it possible for the buses to leave the hotel, but he supported the Burlington police as well as the stated goals of the protesters.

"I think we are in harmony with much of their agenda," Shumlin said. "When I see protests that are suggesting we need to move to renewables, that we need to ensure that we get off oil and create jobs with more energy efficiency and the other issues that they're addressing, we're inside here doing the hard to deliver on those wishes."

Nalcor, Emera finalize Muskrat Falls project

Power. Hydroelectric facility would generate about 10 per cent of Nova Scotia's energy needs for 35 years

A deal to finalize a term sheet to develop the Muskrat Falls hydroelectric project in Labrador has been reached, sources told The Canadian Press on Monday.

The deal to build the project, expected to cost more than $6.2 billion, is between the province's Crown energy company Nalcor and Nova Scotia private utility Emera.

Two sources say the governments for the two provinces are expected to announce details on Tuesday, with Nova Scotia Energy Minister Charlie Parker to be in attendance.

Both governments have called news conferences to make energy announcements on Tuesday. A spokeswoman for Nova Scotia's energy minister wouldn't say if the announcement in Halifax was related to Muskrat Falls.

The two utilities have a joint plan to harness energy from the lower Churchill River in Labrador and bring it to Newfoundland and the mainland using subsea cables.

The two sides announced a term sheet in November 2010 for the complex project but then missed a one-year deadline and an extension to reach a final agreement as they worked out details.

Newfoundland and Labrador is to hold a political debate this fall before deciding whether to sanction the project.

Under conditions of the term sheet, Nalcor would spend $2.9 billion to build a power-generating facility at Muskrat Falls to produce 824 megawatts of electricity.

Emera would fund a 180-kilometre subsea link between Cape Ray, N.L., and Lingan, N.S., at a cost of $1.2 billion.

A further $2.1 billion would be spent to build a transmission link from Labrador to Newfoundland, $600 million of which would be provided by Emera.

Nova Scotia would get 170 megawatts of energy a year, about 10 per cent of the province's total energy needs, for 35 years.

Colorado suspect charged with 24 counts of murder

Before the law. James Holmes also charged with 116 counts of attempted murder after theatre massacre

Prosecutors on Monday charged a former neuroscience graduate student with 24 counts of murder and 116 counts of attempted murder in the Colorado theatre rampage that once again opened a national debate over guns. Legal analysts expect the case to be dominated by arguments over his sanity.

James Holmes appeared just as dazed as he did in his first court appearance a week ago, but at one point he exchanged a few words with one of his attorneys. Some victims and family members again watched him in the packed courtroom, and before the hearing some clasped their hands and bowed their heads as if in prayer.

The July 20 attack at a midnight showing of the new Batman movie left 12 people dead and 58 others injured. Holmes faces two counts for each victim — murder with deliberation and murder with extreme indifference. Both carry a maximum death penalty upon conviction.

A former chief deputy district attorney said a conviction under extreme indifference means that any life sentences would have to be served consecutively, not concurrently.

Holmes also faces one count of possession of explosives. After his arrest outside the theatre, police said they found his apartment was booby trapped.

Unlike Holmes' first court appearance, Monday's hearing was not televised. At the request of the defence, District Chief Judge William Sylvester barred video and still cameras, saying expanded coverage could interfere with Holmes' right to a fair trial.

The judge also has placed a gag order on lawyers and law enforcement, sealing the court file and barring the University of Colorado Denver from releasing public records relating to Holmes' year there. A consortium of media organizations, including The Associated Press, is challenging Sylvester's sealing of the court file.

Attorneys on Monday also were arguing over a defence motion to find out who leaked information to the media about a package the 24-year-old Holmes allegedly sent to his psychiatrist at the university.

Authorities seized the package July 23 after finding it in the mailroom of the medical campus where Holmes studied. Several media outlets reported that it contained a notebook with descriptions of an attack, but Arapahoe County District Attorney Carol Chambers said in court papers that the parcel hadn't been opened by the time the "inaccurate" news reports appeared. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern India. Fire on overnight train kills 32 passengers, burns dozens

A fire swept through a train car packed with sleeping passengers in southern India on Monday, killing at least 32 people and sending panicked survivors rushing for the only clear exit once the train stopped, officials said.

Investigators found charred remains of victims still in their sleeping berths and were struggling to identify them.

A railway station worker noticed the burning coach as the overnight train from New Delhi to the southeastern city of Chennai passed through the town of Nellore at about 4 a.m., local official B. Sridhar said. Nellore is about 500 kilometres south of Hyderabad, the capital of Andhra Pradesh state.

Once the alarm was raised, the train was stopped and the coach was detached from the rest of the train to prevent the blaze from spreading.

"Since the fire had engulfed one door of the coach, people had to rush to the other end of the coach to exit," Sridhar said.

Passengers said the fire spread swiftly through the coach. "By the time we got out of the door, the coach was completely on fire," said Shantanu, who like many Indians uses only one name. He said firefighters sprayed water over the burning coach, but it was gutted.

Sridhar said the fire may have been caused by an electrical short circuit in the coach.

At least 28 others were hospitalized with burns, including at least two in critical condition, said Anil Kumar, a regional railway manager.

India has one of the world's largest train networks, with more than 10,000 trains and 64,000 kilometres of track. Around 20 million people travel by train each day.

370 million affected

India's power grid fails amid heat

Northern India's power grid crashed Monday, halting hundreds of trains, forcing hospitals and airports to use backup generators and leaving 370 million people — more than the population of the United States and Canada combined — sweltering in the summer heat. The blackout, the worst to hit India in a decade, highlighted the nation's inability to feed a growing hunger for energy as it strives to become a regional economic power.

The northern grid crashed about 2:30 a.m. because it could no longer keep up with the huge demand for power in the hot summer, officials in the state of Uttar Pradesh said.

However, Power Minister Sushil Kumar Shinde said he was not sure exactly what caused the collapse and had formed a committee to investigate it. By late morning, 60 per cent of the power had been restored in the eight northern states affected by the outage and the rest was expected to be back on line by the afternoon, Shinde said.

Feds forced sterilization of three HIV-infected woman, court rules

Namibia's government sterilized three women infected with HIV without getting proper consent, forcing them to sign forms they didn't understand as they suffered through the pains of labour, a judge ruled Monday.

Activists applauded the findings by Judge Elton Hoff, though the ruling rejected lawyers' accusations that doctors sterilized the women specifically because they had HIV in a country where the virus remains endemic. The activists say they worry more women in the southern African nation are coerced into the procedure, as other cases pending before courts allege women suffered similar treatment at the hands of doctors. The three women all sought care at government hospitals in Namibia. All signed release forms that allowed doctors to sterilize them, though at the time they didn't realize what they had agreed to, said Nyasha Chingore, an HIV project lawyer. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cocaine production drops 25 per cent

Production of pure cocaine in Colombia declined by 25 per cent in the last year, according to a U.S. government survey of drug production.

Gil Kerlikowske, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy, said Monday that potential cocaine production in the South American country has dropped by 72 per cent since 2001. Colombia now ranks third, behind Peru and Bolivia, in production of pure cocaine, he said.

"Potential production of pure cocaine in Colombia is down to 195 metric tons from 700 metric tons in 2001, the lowest production potential level since 1994 and the first time since 1995 that Colombia is producing less cocaine than either Peru or Bolivia," Kerlikowske said in a speech at the Center for Strategic and International Studies. Kerlikowske's office said the drop in Colombia cocaine production has coincided with a decline in U.S. cocaine overdose deaths, positive workplace drug tests and the purity of cocaine available for street purchase. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With billions of dollars and control of the U.S. smartphone and computer tablets markets at stake, jury selection began Monday in a closely watched trial between two of the world's leading tech companies over patents.

Apple is demanding $2.5 billion in damages, an award that would dwarf the largest patent-related verdict to date.

Samsung countered that Apple is doing the stealing and that some of the technology at issue — such as the rounded rectangular designs of smartphones and tablets — have been industry standards for years.

The case is just the latest skirmish between the two companies over product designs. A similar trial began last week, and the two companies have been fighting in courts in the U.K. and Germany.

WHY PUT PRIVATE PAIN IN THE PUBLIC EYE?

SHE SAYS...
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca/shesays

We all make mistakes in our 20s. Luckily, most of us don't have to live out those youthful bad decisions on the front page of People magazine. Kristen Stewart — of red carpet grimacing and Twilight fame — is not as fortunate as us regular folk.

Last week, the 22-year-old starlet was outed in a very public manner for cheating on her long-time boyfriend Robert Pattinson with married Snow White and the Huntsman director Rupert Sanders.

Sadly, Robsten — perhaps the most overreaching celebrity couple portmanteau of all time — is no more. But while TwiHard fan girls are mourning the end of an on-screen vampire romance turned true love, the rest of us are wondering, why on Earth we should care at all?

Oh that's right, because Stewart and her philandering partner released PUBLIC statements of apology, as if we are the ones being directly impacted by this made-in-Hollywood affair.

It seems confusing to me that stars in the spotlight — who usually demand privacy in times of great stress — would validate the role that these gossip magazines play in their personal relationships by issuing apologetic press releases. I think both Stewart and Sanders' statements have everything to do with creating publicity and very little to do with salvaging their respective relationships.

Unfortunately, overt performances of romance gone awry aren't confined to the world of celebrity couples.

I'll confess that I've been there. Following an Earth-shattering teenage breakup, I spent about a month adorning my MSN screen name with sensitive song lyrics by courtesy for my entire pre-Facebook social network to see.

And while these barefaced displays of pubescent melancholy might be forgivable in a 16-year-old, I still see the same sort of emotional exhibitionism from my peers a decade later.

I see it all the time, people baiting friends and followers with attention-seeking updates on their private-life dramas. Do you really find solace in smearing your broken heart all over your Facebook profile? Does tweeting about your newly "single and fabulous" status offer you real emotional validation? Is it really necessary to Instagram a photo of yourself with downcast eyes and a solemn pout with #Breakup attached?

What does it say about us as a society that we not only have a schadenfreude-esq obsession with celebrity couple breakdowns, but that we feel the need to imitate their penchant for over-sharing in our own online worlds?

We should probably leave the brazen theatrics to shameless reality stars and teenagers with raging hormonal levels. Remember, not every emotional meltdown warrants a press release, at least not in the real world.

Where to find the Olympic cauldron

Fire returns after being relocated

Austin Playfoot, a torch-bearer from the 1948 Olympics — when the Games were last held in London — and again this year, poses after lighting the cauldron at the Olympic Stadium during the 2012 Summer Olympics on Monday in London. The cauldron was moved from the infield to an area near the opening ceremony bell to prepare for the track and field competition, which begins Friday.

Organizing committee officials said in a statement Monday that the cauldron was shifted from the middle of the stadium's infield to an area near the opening ceremony bell to prepare for the track and field competition, which begins Friday.

The cauldron will only be visible to those who have tickets to the track and field competition. This has been a cause for concern for spectators with a burning desire to get a photo with it.

Organizer says:

"It was not created to be a tourist attraction."

Sebastian Coe, head of the London organizing committee, told the media.

Le Havre

Director. Aki Kaurismäki

Stars. Andre Wilms, Blondin Miguel, Jean-Pierre Darroussin

Le Havre is an exceeding droll comedy from Finnish master Aki Kaurismäki, whose dark worldview is balanced by a deep empathy for his blue-collar characters. Charming in its retro manners, cares and colours — while at the same time contemporary in its grasp of immigration and poverty issues — the film is set in the French port city of the title, a place where goods and people are constantly shifting. André Wilms stars as wily old shoeshiner Marcel, who dodges cops and creditors as he cheerily dispenses polish and eccentric home-spun philosophy out of the main railway station. Marcel's bonhomie is put to the test by a big event: a group of African stowaways, illegal immigrants all, have been discovered inside a container on the Le Havre dock. One of them, a young pre-teen named Idrissa (Blondin Miguel), manages to evade police and port authorities, and he's now being sought. Will Marcel squeal or assist? As good as the cast is, it's the deceptively passive Miguel who anchors the film.

Television Critics Association press tour. Network head touts first-place success, talks new and returning shows

AMBER RAY

Metro World News in New York

As head of the top-rated broadcast network, Nina Tassler, President of CBS Entertainment, didn't have many announcements to make when addressing journalists at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., other than one clear message: The network is on top, and plans to stay there.

"We're No. 1 in viewers. We're No. 1 in upfront revenue. We're No. 1 in Emmy nominations," Tassler said. "Good performance, good business, and outstanding quality on the screen. I'm really proud of the environment we've created for launching and sustaining hit shows, from development, to scheduling, to marketing, to current programming," she added.

In a "not broke, not gonna fix it" move, the CBS slate this fall includes just four new series: Elementary, a modern take on Sherlock Holmes; Vegas, about the politics and crime that shaped the Strip in the 1960s; Made in Jersey, a crime procedural following a Jersey girl working her way up at a high-end Manhattan law firm; and the buddy comedy Partners.

Regarding the pickup of Elementary at a time when there are many other versions of Sherlock Holmes on the pop culture scene (the BBC series Sherlock and the Sherlock Holmes movie franchise included), Tassler said, "when you have an opportunity to build a show around one of the greatest detectives in all of literature, you're going to jump at that opportunity."

She called the BBC series, which airs on PBS in the States, "extraordinary," and is confident "there's plenty of room for another Holmes in our world."

When questioned about Vegas and the recent failure of other period dramas on broadcast networks (The Playboy Club, Pan Am) Tassler insisted her '60s-set series goes beyond a nostalgia factor. It is foremost about the fascinating character of real-life Sheriff Ralph Lamb, who fought to bring order to the mob-run casino scene, she said.

"The fact that it was set in the '60s certainly informed the show, but it's not about the '60s, per se," Tassler said. "It's about these two forces that were battling for the heart and soul of Las Vegas at a very key moment in the history of the city."

Most questions posed to the CBS exec, however, involved returning series.

On football games running late and pushing back the start time of scripted series such as The Good Wife:

"One of the things we've done going into this season, we're developing new SMS texting technology to make sure our audience knows that the show is going to be delayed. Between texting, between online notification, between Facebook technology, I mean, literally, we do everything possible, and will continue to do everything, to make sure that the audience knows that the show will be on later as a result of (football)."

On cancelling CSI: Miami ...

"Saying goodbye to a CSI this year was — it was a very big deal. That show has been extraordinarily successful for us. So it was a difficult decision. What we looked at — it was a jump ball. What we looked at was Friday night versus Sunday night. We looked at the flow on Fri-

Comedy. One of the biggest questions posed to Tassler was about renewing How I Met Your Mother and allowing the creators to tell the entire story. Here's what she had to say: "Well, they had an incredible year last year. We've got a great relationship with (creators) Craig (Thomas) and Carter (Bays), and certainly they have a very strategic wrap-up to the show. They know we want the show to come back next year. We are having conversations right now about extending it. We want the show to come back next year."

day night for New York versus Miami. So it was a very tough choice. But as I said, it was really a jump ball and just had to do with the schedule."

... And changes to CSI: New York:

"We've added Natalie Martinez to the cast. The show has, as I said, a lot more humour and a lot more New York, fun, event-type stories."

Life of Pi brought to life by director Ang Lee

Book to film.

Trailer for movie adaptation of Yann Martel's famous novel released this month

A Saskatoon-based author who has already seen his novel become an international bestseller is getting ready to make headlines again.

Yann Martel's book, the Life of Pi, has become a movie.

There are no words in the trailer that was released recently, but Martel says it's the visuals that draw people in and that's thanks to director Ang Lee, known for such varied films as Brokeback Mountain and Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon.

"He cares about every single aspect of the movie, so it is a visually lush movie," says Martel.

"Even if it's only the ocean, which you think is a fairly spare environment, it's a visually stunning, stunning movie."

Life of Pi is a fantasy-adventure story of an Indian boy who spends 227 days on a boat in the Pacific Ocean with a Bengal tiger.

Martel says he met with Lee and had involvement with the creation of the screenplay, giving detailed written feedback on more than one occasion.

He even appears in it.

"I have a small cameo in the movie, let's see if it survives the editing process, but I have a small cameo," Martel says.

Bell and her beau have a workplace romance

For Kristen Bell, teaming up again with fiancé Dax Shepard for their new movie, Hit and Run, was something of a no-brainer. "We realized we're severely co-dependent," Bell tells Us Weekly. "It's not just like you're caught in the house with your significant other for six weeks and you're both doing different things and feel like you're in each other's way. We actually had the same goal and we really, really, really wanted the best for the script Dax had written. Because we had the same mutual goal, it felt shared." So how did she get

Farrell living the simple, boring life

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Colin Farrell has been behaving himself for years now, doing just enough films to stay relevant while plugging just enough charities to seem rich and enlightened.

But while we may forget his rehab-and-sex-tape days, Farrell is surprised his career survived them. "I had burned so many bridges in the film industry that I couldn't get a f—king meeting," the actor tells Men's Health.

You can catch him this weekend in the remake of Total Recall, a role he was able to land thanks to his fairly healthy new lifestyle.

"I don't put the same level of energy into healthy living as I did into unhealthy living, but I eat really well, drink loads of green tea and take a s—t load of vitamins," he tells the magazine. "It's so f—king boring. Life has mutated to take on this sweet simplicity that I am really f—king OK with."

Colin, if you want in on our Pier 1-Target double-header this weekend, say the word.

Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson

Reality bites: Twilight stars will have to reunite

In the wake of Kristen Stewart's apology for cheating on Robert Pattinson, the Twilight co-stars are reportedly not speaking to each other, according to People magazine. Sources say both parties have left the L.A. home they share and are living elsewhere separately. "I'm not sure they'll be able to recover from this," a source tells the magazine, adding that Pattinson "is heartbroken and angry." They'll have to face each other soon enough, though, as they're set to be co-presenters at MTV's Video Music Awards on Sept. 6, just as promotional duties begin in earnest for the final Twilight film, out in November.

Taking the guesswork out of emergency room wait times

Technology. Hospitals across Canada are using tools to help patients make informed decisions about making the trip

CELIA MILNE
life@metronews.ca

How long will I have to wait in the Emergency?

The answer to that question may soon be at your fingertips.

One hospital in Ontario and several in Alberta now have websites that tell patients how long they'll wait for emergency care.

"Patients and families appreciate knowing in advance how long they'll have to wait to see a physician or nurse practitioner," says Don Shilton, president of St. Mary's General Hospital in Kitchener, the first Ontario hospital with the tool.

"This helps them plan their lives...whether to arrange child care or bring a book."

All hospitals across the country use a triage system to dictate which patients get seen first.

Those with a life-threatening illness or injury, such as a heart attack or major trauma

"If people decide they don't want to wait, the tool also lists alternatives to the emergency department such as urgent care clinics."

from a car accident, will always get priority.

Those with less-urgent needs, such as tummy pain or an earache, will have to wait longer. The new tool tells you, with the click of a mouse, the average wait time for those with non-life-threatening problems.

"The time on the clock is updated every 20 minutes," says Shilton.

"If people decide they don't want to wait, the tool also lists alternatives to the emergency department such as urgent care clinics."

He hopes other hospitals adopt the tool, so that patients can explore alternatives online.

The next step is developing a smart phone App that helps you find the closest emergency department, provide directions on how to get there and show how long you'll wait once you get there.

"I can see this being very helpful if you were in a different city or part of the province," says Shilton.

Hospitals in Edmonton and Calgary are using a similar tool, according to Health-ydebate.ca, an online health care magazine based at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto.

Edamame is all the rage today. These soy beans are a great source of protein, an excellent source of fibre and loaded with vitamins and minerals. You can eat them on their own or toss them into a salad.

1. Boil edamame beans just until bright green, approximately 3 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water.

Ingredients

Salad

- 3 cups frozen edamame beans
- 1 cup canned corn kernels, drained
- 1/2 diced water chestnuts
- 1/2 cup diced red bell pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped green onions
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro

Place in serving bowl.

2. In non-stick skillet sprayed with vegetable oil, sauté corn just until browned, approximately 5 minutes. Add to edamame along with water chestnuts, bell pepper, green onions and cilantro.

3. For dressing: Mix soy sauce, rice vinegar, sesame oil, honey, garlic and ginger and pour over salad. Garnish with toasted sesame seeds.

Recent studies have shown that as little as 1/3 cup of beans can prevent or reduce peripheral artery disease (the first signs of heart disease). Well, if it's that easy...giddy up. Any pulse or dried bean will do but here are a few winners.

Highest Protein Bean: Soybeans

Choose whole, organic, frozen edamame beans, steam and salt them. Serve them as a snack or appetizer.

Highest Magnesium Beans: Adzuki Beans

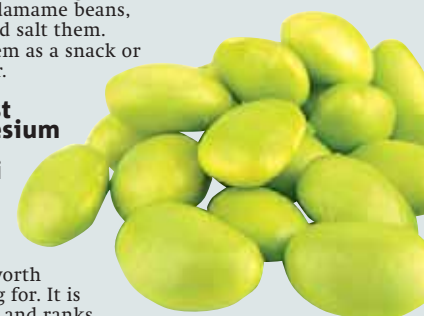

This Japanese bean is worth searching for. It is delicious and ranks highest in many nutrients. Find it in canned form in Asian or health food stores. If you can't find it, navy beans come close. Add them to pastas and soups.

Easiest Bean: Lentil Hummus

Two tablespoons of this spread will do. Any hummus works but lentils are higher in fibre, folacin and iron. Baby carrots, anyone?

Alison's money rule. Timing the stock exchange to perfection is probably as difficult as winning the lottery

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca

A couple of days ago I got the kind of email I hate the most. If it had been snail mail I would have seen tear drops on the paper.

It was from a distraught woman in her mid-40s who was taking a beating in the stock market. Her portfolio had been 100 per cent invested in stocks (through mutual funds) and she flip-flopped back and forth between the US and Canadian market — losing both ways.

Now she's pulled all her money out of the market, paid deferred sales charge fees on her mutual funds, and is sitting on the sidelines waiting for the right moment to get back in. Essentially she is doubling down on a bad bet and she's almost certain to lose again.

I'd have no quarrel if she can't stomach the turmoil of the stock market. But if so she should put her money in GICs or a savings account. She won't make much money but she won't lose any either.

The simple fact is that the average investor cannot time the market and very few professionals can manage the trick either.

So what can you do? It's called asset allocation.

The task is to divide your money among equities (stocks), bonds and cash. Historically the equities provide growth over time. Bonds provide ballast because they churn out interest when the stock market goes down. Cash is for emergencies and it also will provide

In numbers

9 per cent

The average annual return of investment grade corporate bonds over 20 years with interest re-invested.

some interest income.

A sample asset allocation might be 50 per cent equities, 40 per cent bonds and 10 per cent cash. The equities could be divided 25 per cent U.S. and 75 per cent Canada. Pick an allocation that works for you, your risk tolerance and your situation.

The next step is critical. Use new contributions or dividend and interest income to maintain your allocation. This is called rebalancing and it's the key to lowering risk and increasing return.

Unless you have an accurate crystal ball, correctly timing the stock market is less likely than winning the lottery.

Rude surprise: French fed up with their own incivility

It's a July evening on the terrace of the legendary Cafe Flore. A coiffed woman sips chilled wine, another savours her chocolate éclair.

The one thing to complete a perfect picture of Parisian life? A dash of French rudeness. It comes from the waiter, who snootily turns away a group of tourists: "There's no point waiting," he shrugs, even though there are many empty tables. "No space outside."

Such rituals of rudeness have long been accepted by visitors as part of the price of enjoying such a beautiful city as Paris. But it seems the French themselves, who over centuries have turned rudeness into an art form, have become fed up with their own incivility, according to recent polls and publicity campaigns.

There's a fabled history of French rudeness from Napoleon, who called the English a "nation of shopkeepers," to former President Nicolas Sarkozy, who infamously snarled at a voter: "Get lost, poor jerk."

Now, bad manners and aggressive behaviour top the list of causes of stress for the French, even higher than unemployment or the debt crisis, says pollster IPSOS.

A total of 60 per cent cited rudeness as their number one source of stress in a survey last year on social trends.

"We're so rude," admits 34-year-old French teacher Stephane Gomez, as he comes out of a Paris metro station. "France lacks the civic sense that you find in Anglo-Saxon countries."

"It's so easy to be polite, but we don't do it," says 30-year-old Zahia Sebahi. "I never see someone give up their seat for an elderly person."

But Paris's public transport authority is leading the fight-back in a summer-long publicity campaign against rudeness.

Billboards depicting Frenchmen with animal heads have dominated metro stations; they target passengers who are rude to staff and push and shove. "If you shove five people getting onboard," the posters say, "it won't make us set off faster." Bus ads read: "One bonjour doesn't cost a penny, and it changes your day." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EDUCATION BOOM

CHANGING OF THE GUARD AS BABY BOOMERS RETIRE

Adult education is booming — thanks to the baby boomers.

Bob Cram, executive director of the Centre for Continuing and Distance Education at the University of Saskatchewan, says older workers exiting the workforce have driven up demand for business courses to train their replacements.

Demand this fall will be high for courses in business, communications skills, writing skills and leadership development, supervisory dealing with difficult people. “All of those courses help you develop skills you can use in your job,” he says.

Many adult learners take skills non-credit courses once a week in 13-week evening classes. He says leadership development and project management are the most popular. Another popular section is graduate programs like an MBA for a businesswoman advancing her career, or a master's in education for a teacher who wants to become a principal. Public administration and public health degrees are also in demand.

Cram attributes it to a changing of the guard as boomers retire. Those retired boomers also created the second surge in adult education. “Now they want to take courses that are just for fun. For the love of learning,” he says.

They don't care about getting a degree, but just want a social outing in an educational setting. Many cities have non-profit organizations like the 400-member Saskatoon Seniors Continuing Learning Inc. These groups liaise with their members and their local universities to pick classes on topics like Irish literature, the origins of the First World War, or Prairie geology.

Cram notes you can audit a course, which means you don't get a credit, but it reduces the cost by half. Seniors can sometimes learn for free. “Typically, it's after the normal registration period has closed. If there's space in the class they can register for free,” he says.

The trend is moving away from that, but it's worth checking with your registrar. Courses organized specifically by seniors groups are often only about $50 anyway.

Cram notes that many of the professional development courses are being taken online. The University of Saskatchewan saw online enrolment jump 35 per cent in each of the last two years.

ST FX PROGRAM WINS AWARD

FOR DIPLOMA IN INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY STUDIES

The diploma in intellectual disability studies, offered through the continuing and distance education department at StFX, received an award of excellence from CAUCE (Canadian Association for University Continuing Education) at its annual conference in Saskatoon in May.

The committee members judging the applications were “deeply impressed by how the program enriches the lives of those with intellectual disabilities, and the program's community partnership approach.”

In accepting the award on behalf of the department, Janice Landry, director of continuing and distance education, said “the program was developed (in 2005) in collaboration with experts in the field of intellectual disability at the request of L'Arche Canada to support both the caregiver and the person with an intellectual disability ... the program stresses a community model of care and emphasis on the social and spiritual needs, as well as on the physical needs of the individual.”

ticum, the program is of interest to group home leaders and workers, residential care facility co-ordinators, L'Arche assistants and directors, employment counsellors, residential counsellors, teaching assistants, CACL staff, and parents.

Landry added “the focus is on caring about, as well as caring for and encourages a reciprocal relationship between the caregiver and the person with an intellectual disability, recognizing that each has gifts to bring to the relationship.”

Mooseheads

Rookies to open training camp on Aug. 15

It seems hard to believe, but the training camp for the Halifax Mooseheads is only about two weeks away.

The team announced Monday that the team's camp will open on Wednesday, Aug. 15 at Cole Harbour Place for about 30 rookies. The rookie camp will run through Sunday, with the veterans taking to the ice on Monday, Aug. 20.

The Mooseheads will play eight pre-season games in total, beginning with back-to-back rookie games against the Cape Breton Screaming Eagles on Aug. 18 and 19. The Aug. 18 game will take place at the Halifax Forum.

The other home dates are Aug. 25 against the Moncton Wildcats in Wolfville, Sept. 9 against the Eagles at the Forum and Sept. 14 versus the Saint John Sea Dogs, also at the Forum.

Tickets for the pre-season games at the Forum go on sale Wednesday for $7 each, or three for $15. They are available at the Forum box office or the Mooseheads Antlers Merchandise Store at the Halifax Metro Centre box office. PHILIP CROUCHER/METRO

Wedded bliss

Fleury, longtime girlfriend tie knot

Pittsburgh Penguins goaltender Marc-Andre Fleury is sporting some new jewelry to go along with the Stanley Cup ring he won in 2009.

The former Cape Breton Screaming Eagle married longtime girlfriend Veronique Larosée in a lavish ceremony earlier this month at Notre-Dame Basilica in Montreal, the same church at which international singing superstar Celine Dion married Rene Angelil in 1994.

Fleury, who will be 29 in November, has been with Larosée since he was 15, the age when he arrived in Cape Breton to play for the Screaming Eagles.

Fleury's Cape Breton billets, Bob and Angela Hawkins, their son Jeffrey and daughter Janelle, were among the 250 or so guests who attended the wedding. Fleury's billet family from the year he left his home in Sorel, Que., to play bantam hockey also attended.

Also among the guests were Fleury's Pittsburgh teammates — past and present — including Sidney Crosby. CAPE BRETON POST

Vegas big winner on Day 1 of skins game

Golf. Hammonds Plains course gets rave reviews from players, especially over the 'perfect' greens

PHILIP CROUCHER
philip.croucher@metronews.ca

Jhonattan Vegas showed Halifax golf fans he can drive for show and putt for dough.

The 27-year-old Venezuelan was the big winner on Day 1 of the TELUS World Skins Game, using long drives and great touch on the greens at the Glen Arbour Golf Course in Hammonds Plains to win five skins and $85,000.

The reigning skins game champion finished Day 1 and the opening nine holes with five birdies — three of which came in the last three holes — much to the delight of the 5,000 plus fans in attendance.

"We are trying to make as many birdies as we can and I was lucky enough to make a few more than they did," said Vegas, the event's defending champion.

"I usually make a lot of birdies so I guess I'm getting pretty good at this type of game. I just had a blast. I'm having a great time with these four guys. Things are going great"

While he didn't win the hole, Vegas showed his driving prowess especially on the 390-yard Par 4 ninth hole. With driver in hand, Vegas blasted the ball over the water on the hard dog-leg left and landed it on the green, leaving himself a 40-foot eagle putt.

The other players in the fivesome — Stephen Ames, Paul Casey, Lucas Glover and Carl Petterson — also drove over the water, but none could reach the green.

"We were talking about (going for the green) on the tee and I knew I could get there because of the wind," said Vegas.

"He took a little off of it," chimed in Ames, to a roar of laughter.

The players finished with 11 birdies and one eagle for the opening nine holes, and said there would've been more had it not been for the fast Glen Arbour greens, which they were raving over.

The players estimated the greens rolled between 12.5 to 13 on the stint meter, which is faster than a lot of PGA tour events.

"I thought the greens were very impressive," Casey said. "I would say there would be more birdies out there if we weren't struggling with the pace of the greens. It surprised us all on the first couple of holes how fast they were. Perfect shape."

Tennis. Ontario's Raonic and Quebec's Wozniak dominate opening matches in London

It didn't take long for Canada's Milos Raonic to show his opponent what to expect in their first-round men's singles match at the London Games.

Raonic opened the match by firing an ace that hit the back fence in a heartbeat and left Tatsuma Ito completely flat-footed. The Japanese player never found an answer for the Canadian's booming serve, with Raonic posting a comfortable 6-3, 6-4 victory at the All England Club.

"I'm fortunate enough to play with a big enough game that most of my results are going to depend on me," Raonic said. "I feel like if I step it up, I will have an opportunity to win."

Raonic used ground strokes and mixed in some deft cut shots to prevent Ito from finding his rhythm. The Thornhill, Ont., native picked up an early break for a 3-1 lead and was never threatened the rest of the way.

"It was a perfect match to get into the tournament," said Canadian coach Martin Laurendeau. "He could work on his game and his patterns and make sure everything is nice and clean and he was able to do that convincingly."

Aleksandra Wozniak of Blainville, Que., also posted a straight-set victory in her opening women's singles match. She defeated Marina Erakovic of New Zealand 6-2, 6-1.

"It's my first Olympics and it's so different than any Grand Slam or any WTA tournament," Wozniak said. "Tennis is such an individual sport, but (here) it's like you play for your own country. So the first victory for sure, it's for Canada."

The draw gets a lot tougher now for the No. 25-ranked Raonic, with a second-round match against world No. 6 Jo-Wilfried Tsonga of France on tap for Tuesday.

- Wozniak also faces a huge challenge in Round 2 where she will meet Venus Williams.

Toronto's Daniel Nestor and Vancouver's Vasek Pospisil won their opening men's doubles match later Monday. They beat Horia Tecau and Adrian Ungur of Romania 6-3, 7-6 (9).

"I'm playing with one of the best doubles players in the world," Pospisil said. "We get fired up and we play some of our best tennis."

Donovan Bailey might be 16 years removed from Olympic glory, but that doesn't mean the former sprinter isn't paying attention to the next generation of Canadian athletes.

The double gold medallist at the Atlanta Olympics sent out a message on his Twitter feed Monday to Canada's competitors at the London Games.

"Don't let small minds convince you that your dreams are too big! Go Canada let's dominate!," tweeted Bailey, who set a then-world record time of 9.84 seconds in the men's 100-metre final in Atlanta.

Bailey, who was also part of Canada's gold-medal winning 4x100-metre men's team in 1996, added some encouraging words for tennis player Milos Raonic before his first-round match at the Games.

"Good luck to @milosraonic today in his first match at the Olympics!," Bailey wrote, before later congratulating the No. 25-ranked player in the world on his straight-sets win.

Agnel steals show in 'race of the century'

Swimming. Big Frenchman cruises to second gold medal in 200-metre free event Yannick Agnel is turning into a giant-beater. Actually, he is a giant.

At six-foot-five, the Frenchman has used his extra-long frame to dominate on consecutive nights in the Olympic pool.

First came his come-from-behind anchor leg to push ahead of Ryan Lochte and the Americans in the 4x100 free-style relay on Sunday. Then on Monday, Agnel routed a stellar field by nearly two seconds to win the 200 free individual event.

Agnel led from start to finish and clocked one minute, 43.14 seconds for the best time ever in a textile suit, a whopping 0.72 ahead of Michael Phelps' 2007 mark.

Defending silver medallist Park Tae-hwan of South Korea and 400 free champion Sun Yang of China shared silver in 1:44.93, while world champion Lochte finished fourth and world-record holder Paul Biedermann of Germany was fifth.

With so many standouts, and despite Phelps' decision not to enter, the event was dubbed the "Race of the Century."

"I had to look twice at the scoreboard to be sure it was the right time. I had a race plan in my head, but this is above my expectations and hopes," Agnel said. "I worked on keeping my speed and putting all my guts into the last 50. I don't know what to say — it worked."

Camille Muffat gave France another gold in the women's 400 free on Sunday and France stands second to the United States in the swimming medals table.

Franklin delivers much-needed gold for U.S. swim team

Swimming. Teenager with Halifax ties proves durable in 100-metre freestyle showdown Missy Franklin stared out on the horde of reporters, suddenly sounding very much like a high school senior-to-be. "I don't like being up here alone," she said nervously.

Then, just like that, she turned on a big smile and worked the room like a pro.

Thanks to this Colorado teenager, America's swim hopes are back on track at the Olympics.

Michael Phelps has yet to win a gold medal, and Ryan Lochte's star has dimmed just a bit. So it was Franklin, born in the U.S. to Canadian parents, providing a much-needed boost to swimming's

Golden evening

Matt Grevers kept the gold medals coming for the U.S. in rat-a-tat fashion, following up Franklin's win with one of his own in the men's 100-metre backstroke.

- Nick Thoman made it a 1-2 finish for the red, white and blue.

powerhouse nation, coming back less than 14 minutes after swimming a semifinal heat to win the first gold medal of what figures to be a dazzling career.

"Indescribable," the 17-year-old Franklin said after rallying to win the 100-metre backstroke Monday. "I still can't believe that happened. I don't even know what to think. I saw my parents' reaction on the screen and I just started bawling. I can't even think right now."

Franklin's mother, D.A., is from Halifax and her father Dick went to university in Halifax, but is originally from St. Catharines, Ont.

After finishing up the semis of the 200 freestyle, she hopped out of the pool and headed to the diving well for a quick warmdown. She didn't even have time to make it to the practice pool, not when her bigger event was coming right up.

Even Phelps was amazed at Franklin's stamina, saying he had never done back-to-back races that close together at such a major meet. His quickest turnaround was about a half-hour.

"She's a racer and she knows what to do," Phelps said.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

The pace of life will pick up dramatically over the next few days and you could find yourself running all over the place. Make sure your efforts are for your own benefit. Don't spend every minute making other people happy.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Business issues and personal relationships will in some way be brought together today. You may have to spend a bit of money to attract what you need but it's OK, you can afford it.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Today's Venus-Saturn link will open your heart and make it easier for you to let those you love and admire know how much they mean to you. The depth of your feelings will no doubt surprise them.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You seem to have made a good impression on some of the people you work alongside and a promotion or salary increase is a distinct possibility. Don't be too modest about your talents: You deserve what you get.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Do you really believe in something, or did you copy a friend's idea because it sounded good at the time? If it's the latter today's Sun-Pluto link will force you to face up to its inconsistencies.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You'll be attracted to someone like the proverbial moth to a flame. Let's hope you don't get burned to a crisp! Feel with your heart by all means but think with your head too. It could save you sorrow.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Relationships of all kinds can be strengthened today. With Venus, your ruling planet, on good terms with Saturn in your sign it will be ridiculously easy to mend fences. So what are you waiting for?

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Someone is making life difficult for you. Why? Because it makes them feel good. Now that you know that, you should not feel guilty about hitting back.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Anyone who thinks you are easy to deceive had best think again because you are not only smarter than you look but are in no mood to deal with fools either. Sadly, there are a lot of them.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Some people have been taking advantage of you and it's time you did something about it. Today's cosmic alignment will help you get tough without causing too much of a stir. Drop a few hints. They'll get the message.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You will find it easy to win people over with your way of thinking, but is your way of thinking correct? At some stage you will encounter information that encourages you to look again at certain long-held beliefs.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Family and financial matters are under good stars today and if you go out of your way to make other people happy then you are more likely to be happy too. Your needs and their needs are not so far apart. SALLY BROMPTON
